Patrick J. Michaels is a Senior Fellow with the Competitive Enterprise Institute and a member of the CO₂ Coalition in Arlington, VA. He was Director of the Center for the Study of Science at the Cato Institute, research professor of Environmental Sciences at University of Virginia for 30 years, and Virginia State Climatologist for 27 years, President of the American Association of State Climatologists, and program chair for the Committee on Applied Climatology of the American Meteorological Society.

Michaels has published numerous articles on climate or its impact in the peer-reviewed scientific literature and is author of eight books, including the recent "Lukewarming," published by Cato Books, and co-author of the climate "Paper of the Year" awarded by the Association of American Geographers in 2004. He holds A.B. and S.M. degrees in biology and biological sciences from the University of Chicago, and a Ph.D. in Ecological Climatology from the University of Wisconsin at Madison. In November, 2019 his new book appeared, co-authored and edited with Terrence Kealey, titled "Scientocracy: The Tangled Web of Public Science and Public Policy."
